stylist jo mcguinness graduated from trent polytechnic in nottingham with an upper second in ba (hons) fashion design.

jo started working in fashion as an assistant producer in television on programmes like the clothes show and planet fashion.

permanent posts have been on fashion titles like british marie claire and maxim magazine.

since becoming freelance in 1993 Jo has enjoyed styling womenswear, menswear, childrenswear, interiors and still life.

she has produced p.r. shoots for marks & spencer, sainsburys and debenhams she has lectured in fashion communication and promotion at central saint martins college of art & design.

jo's charity work includes styling the annual gala fashion show for breast cancer care.

fashion show producing work includes shows for dupont, jaeger and smirnoff and working with fashion show producer russell marsh on shows like mui mui, john rocha, clements ribero and nicole farhi her books include 'catwalk' and 'image makers' (both published by batsford).
